[quoted] 2011

Dearest Students,

This year has brought huge change, to our school family and to many of us individually. I have spent a lot of time over the past few months thinking about change. Most of us like new things, but change? No, change pushes us into the unknown, puts us at risk, forces us to question if we are in the right, and shoves us away from that with which we are familiar. Doesn't that sound awful?

I find myself in a dilemma though, because I thrive on change. How is it that I can love something that is so tough? What is it about change that appeals to me? We do not get to control everything that happens in life, a difficult lesson for some of us to learn. However, we DO choose how we are going to respond. Every single time we open our mouths, every time we make a move, every reaction we have to what goes on around us – we are making a choice. We make hundreds of choices every day.

Call it hope, potential, or possibility, but the reason I love change is because it brings with it a promise of opportunity, of something better. Change lures me with thoughts of improvement and teases my imagination with new dreams. The absolute existence of change leaves us with only one question, are we going to be prepared for it – ready for the unknown?

As we end the 2011 school year, my prayer for each of you is that you learn to embrace change; that you choose to focus on the positive and let God worry about the rest. In Psalm 56:4 we read, "In God, whose word I praise – in God I trust and am not afraid. What can mere mortals do to me?" I challenge you to be prepared for making the best decisions with each new thing life throws at you; place your hand in His, trust Him to open your eyes to the potential for greatness, and look to Him for direction with each choice you make.

Ms. Bowman

Dear fellow students,

I have actually been in DLA since my freshman year, even though I was a part-timer the first year only taking one class – Mr. Davidson's Humanities class. DLA was this whole new world (yes pun intended for all you Aladdin fans out there) for the Hooverites and myself. I can't believe this year is already gone. Where did the time go? I don't know, but I do know that thanks to my fellow DLA staffers and Ms. Schwagmeier, this year's yearbook will be, if I do say so myself, AWESOME!

I want to say a very special thanks to Ms. Schwagmeier for putting up with all of us and for being the ringleader of this crazy circus filled with many technological issues through the time. She made this yearbook able to happen, thank you! I also want to thank all my co-staffers for helping me out. Yeah, you all are great! You guys made this year fly by and all your help made everything so much simpler, and of course, so much more fun!

I want to also congratulate all the graduates. You all are now back at the bottom of the food chain, have fun at college/university haha! I will keep you all in my prayers and I wish you the best of luck! I know you all can do it, just get out there and get started! I have never met such a group of people that I felt was really like my family, until Hoover and you all! I know I am going miss you all so much next year!

With much love and thanks for these past years and all the ones to come,

Carrie Joiner

I wrote and had others in my community write letters to soldiers fighting overseas. Then I mailed the letters to be put into care packages. The reason I chose this project is because I wanted to give something back. Soldiers risk their lives for us and being able to do something for them made me happy because maybe those letters were just what they needed to bring a smile to their face.

I came up with the idea of doing a shoe drive and collecting shoes to donate to the local Tornado victims here in Alabama. This, in my opinion, was a very successful project even though I didn't get the results I originally hoped for. To be able to make an impact and realize just how lucky I am really was the best part of this project. I had to send out many flyers, emails, and Facebook invites to get the turn out that I did. But, it was definitely worth all the effort! This project shows you just how we take the little things such as shoes, etc. for granted so easily and don't even think that hey, we just may not have shoes! That is why I am so happy I chose this project.

Nikisha Ryan

For my NHS project I decided to start a toy drive for the Children's Hospital in Birmingham Alabama. To make my project more challenging I decided to advertise to donate toys for older children. I made flyers and hung them around my school and sent home letters to parents about this project. It did take some time but that outcome of my project was pretty moderate. In the end I am altogether pleased that I could help benefit the Children's Hospital in any way.

The National Honor Society is a prestigious organization. Students may not apply, but are invited to be members. For membership consideration and invitation, the student must have a minimum GPA of 3.5, be a student in good standing, and demonstrate leadership through individual activities and community service. Distance Learning Program members of Forest Lake Academy's National Honor Society chapter must work hard as they participate in two projects.

My NHS project this year was leading 1st-8th grade kids in making care packages for local nursing homes and a women's shelter. The care packages included items like toiletries (toothpaste, soap, lotion, etc.) With the school board, I planned the event of going to the school to make the care packages with the kids. Then I visited three different nursing homes and the local women's shelter. When I dropped off the baskets, the people were so thankful and happy. This experience made me see how important it is to put others first. Seeing how happy this project made people made me happy too!

On March 7, 2011, I started a Teddy Bear Drive for the Ronald McDonald House Central in St. Petersburg, Florida. Over eight weeks, I worked towards my goal of 100 bears. In order to collect them, I had four drop off locations including three schools and one store. Individual, family, and business donations were accepted as well. I provided the drop off locations and individual participants with flyers, and arranged the dates and times for me to pick up the bears. Throughout this project, I was surprised and inspired by the participation level of everyone involved. As soon as I realized just how many bears I was trying to get, I thought it would be impossible. But everyone was ready and willing to give. It was only through those who donated bears that I was not only able to reach my goal, but surpass it! On May 4, 2011, I took 104 teddy bears to the Ronald McDonald House Central. The Teddy Bear Drive was an experience I will never forget; I found it to be a real life example of how God allows everything to work out when you're trying to do good for others.

We also wish to acknowledge Daniel McFall for his participation as a member of the FLDLA NHS chapter for the 2010-2011 school year.

One project is an individual service project they must organize and lead. The other is a collaborative group service project that all the members work together to execute.

We are proud of this year's six members.

Articles by Davion Collins

Everyone knows that teaching is a job that requires A LOT of energy and dedication, and DLA students had a chance to experience this firsthand. Students helped the kindergartners with homework, read books to them, and of course, played with them! Student Kaitlyn Icard described her experience:

"We read books with a little Russian girl named Vlada, and we colored pictures with a group of little girls who decided that I and Migdalia were twin sisters. We received lots of hugs and drawings that the little girls made us. It was a great experience and it showed me how much work teachers put into their class' education every day."

Apopka Community Center
(not pictured)

With this service project, students had the chance to help out at a thrift store designed to help the community. Students pitched in for a couple of hours and gave the store a little "facelift". The students repainted the walls, sorted objects, re-arranged displays, and moved large objects for customers. Says student volunteer Caleb Riston: "It was hard work and I nearly busted a few things. I picked up a huge bookcase filled with items but one of the side walls came loose, releasing the shelves and slamming everything into the ground. But it was a fun day and it felt great to serve others!"

ned activities..." -Daddy Day Care, 2004

Forest Lake Education Center

Moving "outside" the classroom, this service project gave students the opportunity to get their hands dirty. From picking up trash to blowing leaves to mowing the grass, this service project was all about making the school property look nice and neat. Daniel McFall commented: "My part of the job was blowing leaves. I went around the roads and helped out while the rest of my friends picked up trash. Seeing a clean school for these kids and a happy staff and faculty, it made me realize what a good thing we were doing, and it made me feel good! It's good to show a Christian example by work." Davion Collins describes his experience as a T.A. at FLEC: "My experience was very enjoyable! I've always enjoyed working with little kids. Joined by fellow student Yusimy Cruz, I spent the day helping the kids with their work and of course, playing with them! (I don't know how, but I somehow became the "monster" that everyone was supposed to beat up!) I was glad to be a part of this service project.

"100.3, 208.5, 100.5, 346.9, 756.2... None of these are in the right place! I'll just stick them all on this shelf and save a lot of time!"

-Kaitlyn Icard

Students benefit a lot from engaging in acts of community service. Not only do they have the opportunity to serve others, but they have the chance to serve God at the same time. Just seeing the faces of the people you help out is the reward in itself. I'm sure that all the DLA student volunteers gained a lot from participating in these service projects. I know I did!!! So what can be the take home message? Service can be very rewarding and when you get a group together, a lot can be accomplished.

Dear Amber,

How fast you've grown.
 You are no longer the tiny baby in my arms, but a beautiful young Christian woman beside me. You have been such a blessing
 in my life and to so many others. Your compassionate attitude and willingness to help and pray have blessed me immensely. I don't think I would have made it through nursing school without your notes or comments of encouragement like "I'll be praying for you. I love you, mom. Don't forget Jesus is with you." or your lovingly packed lunches you made for me because I was too tired. Those things have meant so much to me. I never dreamed I would have a daughter like you. We have been through so much together and I will miss you terribly! However, I know God has a lot in store for you and I look forward to seeing you reach your goals, which are God's for you.

Love always, Mom

"Nature's first green is gold,

Her hardest hue to hold.

Her early leaf's a flower;

But only so for an hour.

Then leaf subsides to leaf. }

So Eden sank to grief,

So dawn goes down to day.

Nothing gold can stay."

-Robert Frost

Since Kindergarten, we have watched you march towards this day. You have grown into an incredible young lady and we want you to know how proud we are of your accomplishments. We are also blessed to have you as our daughter and a big sis. May God continue to lead you as you further your education and make a difference. Congratulations!!
With all our love, Mom, Dad and Denae

John

If there were ever a time to dare, to make a difference to embark on something worth doing it is now. Not for any grand cause, necessarily but for something that tugs at your heart something that is worth your aspiration something that is your dream. You owe it to yourself to make your days count. Have fun. Dig deep. Dream big. Know, though, that things worth doing seldom come easy, there will be times when you want to turn around pack it up and call it quits those times tell you that you are pushing yourself and that you are not afraid to learn by trying. Persist, because with an idea, determination and the right tools, you can do great things. Let your instincts, your intellect and let your heart guide you. Trust, believe in the incredible power of the human mind of doing something that makes a difference of working hard of laughing and hoping of lasting friends of all the things that will cross your path.

Next year the start of something new brings the hope of something great. Anything is possible, there is only one you and you will pass this way but once. "I hope your dreams take you... to the corners of your smiles, to the highest of your hopes, to the windows of your opportunities, and to the most special places your heart has ever known. We are very proud of you.

My son, if thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, even mine.

Yea, my reins shall rejoice, when thy lips speak right things.

Proverbs 23:15, 16

We love you,
Mom and Dad

Blair you continue to amaze us with your kind heart & positive outlook on life. We look forward to seeing God's plan unfold for you.

Thank you for being everything we could ever have asked for.
We Love You!

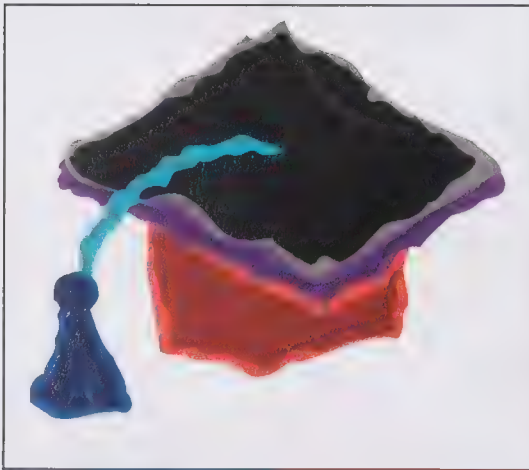

Dad, Mom, Brad & Brandon

Relationships.

The best ones last a lifetime.

They begin in childhood and continue throughout life. Relationships affect our friendships, our life choices, our spirituality. Even our career. At Adventist Health System we're building relationships every day with those we serve. And we're nurturing relationships that we've cherished for years, with those who partner with us in ministry. As we seek to Extend the Healing Ministry of Christ we invite others to join us in developing relationships that last a lifetime. With a mission like this there's a place for someone like you.
